

33rd European Vegetation Survey
Vegetation of Europe: Diversity, Dynamics, Conservation, and Restoration.
Perugia 28th April – 2nd May 2025

Dear friends and colleagues,

We are pleased to share the second announcement and warmly invite you to attend the 33rd Conference of the European Vegetation Survey (EVS), which will be held in Perugia (Italy), from 28th April to 2nd May 2025.

The Conference is organised under the patronage of the International Association for Vegetation Science (IAVS), the Italian Botanical Society (SBI), the Italian Society of Vegetation Science (SISV), and the University of Perugia.

Since 1992, this conference has consistently brought together young and established scientists from various fields of vegetation science, representing countries across Europe and beyond, providing an important platform for presenting the latest research, creating opportunities for connection, and facilitating the exchange of ideas.

The scientific programs of each conference have consistently highlighted both mainstream and emerging topics in vegetation science, addressing critical issues such as the diversity, conservation, and restoration of plant communities and habitats in Europe.

The 33rd EVS Conference will feature interesting topics related to classification, patterns and dynamics, monitoring and mapping, invasive species, and biogeographical patterns of European vegetation.

The 33rd EVS Conference will offer four keynote lectures, several thematic sessions, and engaging poster sessions.

The conference will also include two mid-symposium excursions, providing exciting opportunities for European vegetation scientists to explore the extraordinary diversity of plant species, communities, and landscapes of the Umbria Region.

We sincerely hope you will join us in Perugia for this exciting event. Your participation will make the 33rd EVS Conference a memorable and inspiring gathering for the vegetation science community. Stay tuned for further updates and detailed information about the program, registration, and excursions, which will be available soon on the conference website.

We look forward to welcoming you to Perugia in April 2025!

Warm regards,

The organizing committee

SIDE EVENT

On 3rd May 2025, in the morning, a workshop to discuss the contribution of land use, landscape patterns (fragmentation and heterogeneity) and climatic variables to the preservation of wild edible plants will take place in the same EVS venue. The participation of renowned experts and representatives of public bodies is expected.

EVS attendees are most welcome, especially if interested in sharing their experience on wild edible plants and related ecosystem services, under a multidisciplinary framework involving Bioclimatology, Ethnobotany, Landscape Ecology, and Vegetation Ecology.

When registering for the 33rd EVS, please indicate your interest in participating in the workshop on wild edible plants and, if you wish to present a poster or a scheduled short talk, the title of your contribution. In the afternoon of the same day, we will visit the summit area of Mount Subasio. We will travel by bus and, if the number of participants will be greater than the 50 places available, the order of registration will be followed.
